Being part of DPMSG

How our members contribute

DPMSG brings together industry partners, government departments and regulatory bodies that share a commitment to improving the home buying and selling process.

Every member has a valued role to play, with opportunities to contribute insight, expertise and constructive challenge.

There are different ways to contribute to DPMSG. The membership model is designed to support broad sector engagement while also enabling focused delivery.

DPMSG Members can contribute in different ways:

DPMSG Members

Contribute through engagement, evidence, feedback and constructive challenge.

Delivery Group Members

Take part in specific workstreams when and where their expertise is most relevant.

Strategic Steering Group Members

Provide strategic leadership, oversight and direction, set priorities, review progress and support decisions.

Delivery Group and Strategic Steering Group membership is limited so that groups remain focused, manageable and able to make progress against agreed priorities.

Every member has a valued role

Members who are not part of a Delivery Group are vital to DPMSG's work. Their engagement, evidence, feedback and constructive challenge help us test emerging ideas, strengthen outputs and ensure DPMSG's direction reflects the needs of the whole property sector.

Getting involved

Opportunities to contribute to Delivery Groups and specific projects will be shared with members as they arise. Expressions of interest will be considered against the expertise required, the focus of the work and the capacity of the group.
